“That as governments across the European Union grant a range of fiscal supports to stimulate the market uptake of electric vehicles in response to the European Commission’s goal to have at least 30 million electric vehicles on Member State roads by 2030, this Council believes it ethically and morally necessary to highlight the ongoing environmental and social injustices endured by countries such as Chile, Argentina, Bolivia and the Democratic Republic of Congo in meeting the exponentially accelerating demand for the lithium-ion batteries that will enable the Commission’s goal for Europe to become a climate-neutral continent by 2050.

In addition, that this motion and the introduction to the motion would be circulated to all local authorities in Ireland, to the Minister for Transport and to the First Vice-President of the European Commission who also serves as Executive Vice President of the European Commission for the European Green Deal and as European Commissioner for Climate Action.”
